

INTRODUCING “LUCKY MAN”

A SONG OF GRATITUDE, FATHERHOOD, AND TIMELESS LOVE

Luke Daniel is an Austin-based Americana artist known for his gritty vocals and soul-baring, often witty lyrics. His debut album “Rock N’ Roll Americana” earned praise for its raw honesty and rootsy sound, landing at #65 on the Americana Music Chart. His follow up single “Smoking Weed with Jesus” has become a slow-burning gem—smart, soulful, and strangely comforting. Like the best of John Prine or Hayes Carll, “Smoking Weed with Jesus” was in rotation on Sirius XM’s Outlaw Country and continues to serve side-eyes and snickers from Austin to Abilene.

But Luke is more than just clever lyrics and toe-tapping hooks. As songs like “Dig In” and “Saturday” from Rock N’ Roll Americana prove, his songwriting runs deep. With an instinct for melody and a gift for capturing life’s highs and lows, Luke shifts easily between humor and heartache. His music speaks to the everyday—love, struggle, joy, and redemption. Now a father of two young boys, he’s turned that lens inward, penning one of his most personal songs yet: a message to his children wrapped in raw honesty and tenderness. “I have lived to love my boys and lead them by the hand, the father they deserve to have—ain’t I a lucky man,” he sings.

In a world that often rushes past life’s quiet moments, “Lucky Man” pauses to honor them. This heartfelt ballad captures the emotional journey of a father reflecting on the joys, struggles, and meaning found in raising his children. With honest lyrics, soulful delivery, and a deeply personal touch, the song speaks to anyone who’s ever loved fiercely, endured hardship, and found grace in the everyday. Poignant yet hopeful, “Lucky Man” is a tribute to resilience, legacy, and the quiet strength of parenthood. It’s not just a song—it’s a love letter across time, from one generation to the next.

Lucky Man, recorded by Sam Allison at Hungry Dog Studios in Austin, Texas and produced and released by Brian DeBruler at Sol Records, hits streaming platforms on June 6th. For more info or to schedule an interview, contact: management@lukedanielmusic.com.

To request info on licensing contact: brian@solrecords.com and for radio inquiries contact goodvibrationsmusicpromotion@gmail.com

Official website: www.lukedanielmusic.com